Re: Alexander Walle v. ProStaffing. us, LLC, DBA ProStaffing
File No: 205338

Dear Alexander Walle,

You recently filed a complaint with the Retaliatory Employment Discrimination Bureau (bureau) of the NC Department of Labor against your employer pursuant to the NC Retaliatory Employment Discrimination Act, (REDA), NC Gen. Stat. §§ 95-240 et. seq. In it you alleged that your employer retaliated against you because you engaged in protected activity under REDA. We recently contacted you and let you know the NC Department of Labor does not have jurisdiction to investigate your complaint and asked you to submit additional information, if any, within seven (7) days of the email. This letter sets out the action that the bureau will now take. If you have questions, please contact our Information Officer at 919-707-7947.

You responded but the information you provided is insufficient to conclude that the NCDOL has jurisdiction. Your complaint against the named employer has been administratively closed and the bureau will take no further action in this matter. You will not be issued a right-to-sue letter. This is a final agency action of the NCDOL. You may have other remedies beyond the scope of the NCDOL. The Lawyer Referral Service of the NC Bar Association may be able to refer you to an attorney who can help you at 919-677-8574.

Sincerely,

Brian Lampe
